I am a hard-working, positive, and supportive team member who will help others to achieve success and grow as a team. I'm not afraid of trying new things and taking risks to fulfill goals. What really drives me is being able to create something unique and creative from my own two hands and being able to share that with the world.

Projects

Wikipedia Clone

As a client project at Dev Bootcamp, we were asked to create a Wikipedia clone. Users can create Pages, revisions, and see previous revisions side by side. Majority of the features are replicated and functioning. We focused extensively on testing during this project and agile development.

Tech – Ruby on Rails, Ajax, jQuery, and Circle CI.

Roles – Front-end and Backend.

Remind

Remind is an iOS app that allows users to create a list of items that they want to buy at a store. It will find locations that have that item and notify you when you are near by the location that has that item.

Tech – Ruby on Rails, Google Maps API, Heroku, Swift and xCode

Roles – Back-end rails RESTful API which talked to Google Maps and the iOS app.
